Olweus Bullying Prevention Program

Northwest Schools has embraced a bullying prevention program that will be put into place in January. The Olweus Program (pronounced Ol-VEY-us) is a comprehensive, schoolwide program designed and evaluated for use in grades K through 12. Thanks to a grant from the Sisters of Charity Foundation, 19 Stark County teachers and staff were trained in this research-based and effective program.

Stinson school counselor Marcy McKendry participated in the training: "I had been introduced to the Olweus program in Schools Where Everyone Belongs, by Stan Davis. He had the Olweus training and took his knowledge of the program and his experience and wrote a book about how to implement a prevention program K-8. When I looked into training, the cost was thousands of dollars and with the financial shape we were in as a district, I knew the training wasn't even an option."

"The program takes a relatively large amount of time to implement. It isn't a quick fix. Bullying itself is a complex problem and this program takes 12-18 months to effectively get up and running."

Mrs. Marcy McKendry

October is National Bullying Prevention Month.

Calendar Change in November

Please correct your calendar for the 2012-2013 school year. The waiver date that had been scheduled for Nov. 2 has been changed to Nov. 5 for Olweus training. Therefore, students will attend school on November 2 and have no school on November 5.

District Honored by Ohio Edison for Energy-Saving Measures

The August 2012 Board of Education meeting featured Kim DuCharme of Ohio Edison who presented Board President Jim Gindlesberger with a check for over 38 thousand dollars. The district, which is participating in the FirstEnergy Mercantile Program for Energy Efficiency, has completed a performance contract and a House Bill 261 Project.

The project highlights include the following energy saving measures by the school system:

- Completed lighting retrofits in the high school and elementary school buildings comprising of T8 fixtures. In addition, the gymnasium was updated with T5 fixtures.
- Installed "Thin Client" software that assists in reducing energy consumption of school computer systems.
- Installed Energy Star vending machine refrigerators with sensors that ensure machines stay on during high traffic times and are shut down during times of no occupancy.
- Installed HVAC controls throughout the high school to allow for conservation of energy when rooms and hallways are unoccupied.

Board President Jim Gindlesberger accepts the rebate check from Kim DuCharme of Ohio Edison.

These projects are estimated to save Northwest Local Schools roughly 500,000 kWh annually.

Limited High School Busing Continues

High school transportation was eliminated due to financial constraints before the start of the 2008-2009 school year, and this policy remains in effect at the present time. Over the last few years busing needs have changed, however, and some buses now have empty seats. Last year this situation was addressed by the board of education through a resolution that permits high school students to apply for these empty seats, and students have been assigned transportation on a first-come, first-served basis. According to Bus Coordinator Ray Gesaman, this policy change has allowed 230 high school students to ride the school buses this fall, and, as in the past, the possibility of high school busing in future years will depend upon available seats.

Next Mrs. McKendry sought administrative support: "The program takes a relatively large amount of time to implement. It isn't a quick fix. Bullying itself is a complex problem and this program takes 12-18 months to effectively get up and running. I wanted to make sure that we could get staff committed and motivated enough to see this through." McKendry and Kay Port of the Stark County Educational Service Center teamed together to complete the training of the each building's Bullying Prevention Coordinating Committee (BPCC) and Coordinating Committees. The Ohio Department of Education has granted Northwest a "waiver day," Nov. 5, when the entire Northwest staff, including all certified and classified, will participate in a one-day training. "The word 'bullying' is often tagged with any and all negative behaviors in a school setting. The Olweus program gives a more laser-like focus on what truly defines bullying behavior, how to recognize it, how to stop it and more importantly, how to prevent it. I am excited and encouraged by this program and what it has to offer to the overall learning environment for students K-12," says Stinson Principal Lori Mariani.

The program will be kicked off in each building the week of Jan. 14. "We felt this date allowed the staff more time to practice the skills taught during training. We also wanted to dedicate time to get student buy in and felt we needed to wait until after finals. We didn't want to put it off until the 2013 school year for fear that the momentum would get lost," explains McKendry.

"This is a good thing. We all know that bullying is a societal problem that is under a microscope. Due to its complexity, there is no one cure-all or quick fix. It takes a change in school climate and school culture to make things better, and that is exactly what we are going to do," said McKendry.

Northwest Saves through Shared Services

The last several years have seen an ongoing effort within Northwest Local Schools to be fiscally responsible. We have explored numerous ways to save money, and as a result, "shared services" have become widely used in our district. Encouraged by the Ohio Legislature, shared services allow us to save money.

Shared Services happen when school districts share costs with each other or another group instead of being solely responsible for these costs. For example, Northwest is part of a group that includes most of the school districts in Stark County. By combining their purchases, these school districts use their buying power to provide cost savings in the following areas:

- Fuel for vehicles
- Utilities
- Insurance, both for general school liability and employee medical and dental
- Supplies, including office, educational, maintenance, and transportation
- Computer software and technology
- Food services
- Occupational and Physical Therapy
- Legal Services
- Multiple Services
- Preschool Services for children needing early intervention
- Nursing Services

We will continue to look for new ways to save money. We encourage any community member with ideas to contact the Treasurer's Office. Treasurer Dan Levengood is open to new ideas and welcomes community involvement.

Curriculum News

Race to the Top Update

Northwest Local is currently focusing on the work outlined in year three of its Race to the Top Grant. Teachers in kindergarten through fifth grade have begun the process of implementing the Common Core Standards in Reading and Math. Teachers in sixth through twelfth grade have begun the process of implementing the Common Core Standards and the Ohio Revised Science and Social Studies standards in all content areas. The district is focused on implementing the Formative Instructional Practices (FIP) initiative, which identifies clear learning targets for each content area, and developing and deploying common assessment practices. The district is also piloting Ohio's teacher and principal evaluation systems with a focus on full implementation during the upcoming school year. Additional teachers will receive training to become instructional mentors for newly hired teachers who are participating in the state's Resident Educator Program.

The Race to the Top transformation team met Friday, Sept. 28, to monitor the district's progress in meeting identified goals and performance measures, discuss value-added growth measures that will be used at each grade level, determine implementation procedures for the new teacher and principal evaluation systems and examine the district report card data from the 2011-2012 school year.

The district is currently on track to meet its identified RttT goals and performance measures.

Northwest Local Teachers Focus on FIP

Northwest Local teachers spent August 31 learning about formative instructional practices (FIP) and the district's two-year plan of implementation. The FIP initiative is part of the work outlined in Northwest's Race to the Top Grant, which calls for all stakeholders to use formative instructional practices. There are four main components to this initiative which include the identification of clear learning targets, students' ownership of their learning, the collection and documentation of evidence of learning, and effective feedback.

Clear learning targets drive the teaching and learning process. Everyone is focused on what students need to learn and the students can answer the question, "Where am I headed?" Students take ownership of their own learning by being able to self-assess, give each other feedback and set learning goals. They track, reflect and share their learning with others. They are able to answer the question, "What do I need to do to be successful?" Teachers and students work collaboratively to collect and document evidence of learning. Teachers use the evidence to guide learning and students use evidence to decide "Where am I now?" Finally, effective feedback is provided, thus enabling students to move forward as they become independent thinkers and are able to answer the question, "Am I on the right path?"

As Ohio rolls out new standards, assessments and teacher evaluation systems, it is critical that instructional practices are effective and research-based. The FIP initiative enables teachers, parents and students to work collaboratively to ensure that our students are prepared for thinking and learning in the 21st century.

Use Your Smartphone to Download our Mobile App

The Northwest Local School District is pleased to offer our community a new app that will provide mobile access to our website. The app will allow us to provide the latest news such as school closings and cancellations as well as interactive features. We see this app as an excellent opportunity to communicate with our residents.

Installation is simple. Go to your app store to download the QR Reader. Place the phone over the QR code that appears on the district website and scan the code. Follow the prompts during the installation process to install the application. You will also have an opportunity to sign up to receive instant text notifications. The app is available for all mobile devices.

Northwest is one of only 6 school districts in Stark County offering this mobile advantage, thanks to the generosity of Omni Orthopaedics. If you have any questions regarding the app, please contact Technology Coordinator Jeff Ludwig at ludwig.j@northwest.sparcc.org.

Under the Arabic Sun: Linda Gephart Holl

On August 27 the Northwest Board of Education accepted the resignation of Linda Gephart Holl who retired after teaching for 33 years in the Northwest District. Anyone knowing her is well aware that she didn't retire to take life easy. On September 2 Mrs. Holl became a third grade teacher at the Emirates National School in Al Ain, located south of Dubai in the United Arab Emirates (UAE).

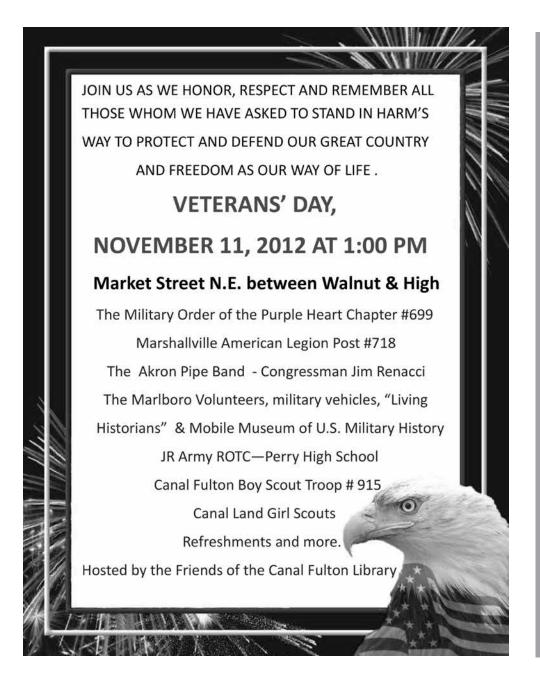

"I was looking for a change of direction in my career," she explains, "something with a little adventure and challenge. The UAE is undergoing major educational reform and I wanted to somehow participate and contribute to their process, either as a teacher or an administrator."

Mrs. Holl began working through Teach Away in Toronto, Canada, in order to pursue an opportunity to teach in another country. During the application process, she became acquainted with Mr. Brian Rotunno, a Malone University graduate and the Head Master at the Emirates National School in Al Ain. He offered her a job in Al Ain this summer.

Schools in the UAW are undergoing changes in curriculum that are very similar to schools in the United States, as they try to prepare their students for global learning. Mrs. Holl says, "As part of their reform, they are ensuring that their students become as fluent in English as

School Cafeterias Strive to Meet Regulations

Parents will tell you that it's challenging to offer healthy meals to the teenagers sitting around their home's dining room table. Imagine trying to feed more than 2 thousand students ranging in age from 5 to 18. That's the challenge facing Food Service Director Patty Schaller and each building cafeteria staff.

This year the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and state regulations have established tougher nutritional standards for school meals, and the schools must encourage students to eat the healthier meals. The new regulations set minimum and maximum calorie levels for grade levels. For example, students in grades K-5 should receive a meal of at least 550 calories but no more than 650 calories. Middle school students are permitted 600 to 700 calories. High school students have a range of 750 to 850 calories. Saturated fats must be below 10 percent. Only skim milk or one-percent milk may be served. Percentages of different types of vegetables (dark green, orange/red, legumes and starchy) must be served with students being required to take a fruit and vegetable each day. In addition, all schools must offer limited whole grains with their meals, a step that Northwest cafeterias had already embraced. Needless to say, the requirements are very complex as government regulations attempt to curb childhood obesity.

"Northwest is often ahead of the national trends toward healthier eating standards, promoting fiber, lowering sodium and reducing saturated fats."

The district website, http://www.northwest.sparcc.org, has the monthly lunch menus posted under Quicklinks.

"We have posted nutritional information in the cafeteria and have also started a new web page—Nutrition and Fitness—under Quicklinks on Northwest's home page," says Schaller. "Northwest is often ahead of the national trends toward healthier eating standards, promoting fiber, lowering sodium and reducing saturated fats."

On Ensemble at Puffenberger Hall October 30

The world-famous On Ensemble will be putting on a one-hour concert for Northwest Middle School at Puffenberger Hall Tuesday, Oct. 30. On Ensemble is a Japanese drum group that uses ancient instruments of taiko. The ensemble has four members who, according to their website, "combine their study and deep appreciation of tradition with equally formative experiences as electronic music producers, jazz drummers, and rock bassists to create a repertoire of ground-breaking music." The members of the group are Masato Baba, Kristofer Bergstrom, Shoji Kameda and Kelvin Underwood, and all four are considered leading artists in their field.

The Ensemble is sponsored by The Ohio Arts Council and ORMACO (Ohio Regional Music and Cultural Outreach). Northwest is one of only 3 districts in Northeast Ohio where they will perform. They will also perform at Black River and Medina City Schools.

Student Leadership another Opportunity for Learning

School principals will tell you that the success of a program or activity relies heavily upon the efforts of its student leaders. Northwest High School is fortunate to have individuals who are willing to take on the challenges of leading their peers and, along the way, learning something about themselves.

Student Council President and Cheerleading Captain Jessica Eicher:

"I have learned that it is so important to be a role model. It's difficult in high school to find your place, but knowing you can make a difference in someone's life makes it easier."

"Northwest has an amazing community that I am so blessed to be a part of. I have had so many encouragers that are teachers, coaches and staff that I am totally grateful for. They have each taught me to be a better person and to strive for my dreams in the future."

Senior Class President and National Honor Society President Mark Bell:

"Through my leadership positions, I have learned to take charge to get things started. If I see that something needs to be done, I take control of it and start working on it. I have learned how to communicate with others and become more open-minded about accepting ideas and compromising."

"I have chosen to take on these responsibilities because I am able to take the stress and use it to push myself to become a better person. I also believe that I can positively influence the students, school and community through this position."

Youth Group Leader and Gymnastics Coach Meredith Fennell:

"There are a lot of rewards that come with becoming a leader. Helping and changing others is probably the most rewarding. Seeing changes in yourself are exciting as well. Northwest High School has allowed me to open up and connect with many different people. You learn so much through high school so this is a very important time to be a leader. What we do now sets us up for the rest of our lives."

Student Council Member J.J. Polkabla:

"I take on the responsibility (of leadership) because I feel like it's the right thing to do. When I walked through the doors here four years ago, I thought to myself that I want to make this a better place in my time here, and I'm just trying to fulfill my goal."

"Northwest High School has made me a better person because it has taught me valuable life skills such as responsibility and how to treat other people. I learned that respect is everything, and if you have it toward others, you will get it in return."

Interact Club President Heather Millard:

"I've learned that I am capable of much more than I expected of myself. I've learned to be okay with standing out and being different because sometimes that can be one way to lead others to do the same. Working with others can be both a challenge and a joy. I've learned to listen and appreciate others opinions and ideas. Everyone has a different way of doing things, and I've learned to embrace that."

"I think when you're in a leadership position, you have many opportunities to impact a group of individuals. I want my life to leave a positive impact wherever I go, and being in a leadership position is a gateway to do so."
